Trip Overview

Boundless Adventures arranges a Chulu East peak climbing trip every climbing season in the Annapurna conservation area. Chulu East Peak, at an elevation of 6584m/21601ft, is an adventurous peak in the Annapurna region. The Peak lies in the Manang district and Gandaki zone of Nepal. However, the trip leads through the beautiful landscape of Manang Valley and the Annapurna circuit trekking trail.

A trip to Chulu East is in the northeast part of Nepal. It is graded in class V at the Adventure level. Trekkers pass through the high camp (5334m) and Camp II (5791m) beside the Chegagji Khola valley before returning to the summit.

Climbing Chulu East Peak was first summited in 1955 A.D. by a German expedition team, which made it famous for climbers. The expedition offers the ultimate Adventure and beautiful views of the local surroundings.

From the summit of Chulu East, you can enjoy spectacular views of Mt. Annapurna II (8,091 m/ 26,545 ft), III (7,555 m/ 24,787 ft), and IV (8,091 m/ 26,545 ft). Furthermore, Mount Dhaulagiri (8,167 m/ 26,795 ft), Gangapurna (7,455 m/ 24,459 ft), Tilicho Peak (7,134 m/ 23,406 ft), and the Manaslu range are mesmerizing.

The climbing trip is enjoyable as it goes through an Annapurna Conservation Area. The area is rich in natural and cultural diversities, with the stunning landscape of snow-capped mountains in the background. The trek continues through the Yak pastures above the beautiful settlement of Manang.

The Chulu East expedition trip begins from Chamje of Manang after the seven-hour drive from Kathmandu. Then, hike up to the base camp via Pisang and Manang villages.

After summiting Chulu East, the climber crosses to Thorong La (5416m) and reaches the next ridge of Muktinath. The climbing trip ends in Pokhara after a short flight from Jomsom.

Climbing the Chulu East peak involves navigating some technical sections. Thus, climbers should be familiar with climbing gear and know how to use it and other types of equipment.

Nepal Mountaineering Association (NMA) authorizes peak climbing permits through government-registered trekking companies. So, Boundless Adventure provides travelers with all necessary permits for the climb.

Boundless Adventure operates Chulu East climbing trips with professional climbing guides. Don't hesitate to contact us for detailed information, including prices and Climbing gear for 2024 and 2025, by e-mail or Whatsapp at +977 9851033819 now.

Cost of Chulu East Peak Climbing

The 19-day Chulu East Peak climbing cost varies depending on various factors. Generally, the group size significantly affects the price. Boundless Adventure provides an exclusive group discount for the journey to Chulu East. Thus, the more you are in a group, the more likely you will get a group discount.

Any additional services also increase the cost of the climb to Chulu East. If you desire complete climbing equipment, that does not cover it, which increases the price. Furthermore, let us know about your claim and climbing equipment, and we will figure out the cost details.

For the exact cost of the climb, please get in touch with us via WhatsApp at +977 9851033819. Our team is always ready to answer your queries. Remember that the cost of climbing Chulu East Peak covers ground transportation, accommodation, and meals throughout the trekking and climbing journey, as well as all necessary permits and equipment.

Book the trip

Contact us directly to book a Chulu East Peak climbing trip. However, feel free to ask any questions about the trip before booking the trip. We'd like to give you all the information about included and excluded services and ensure that our package has no hidden costs. After the query, if you feel comfortable and satisfied, you can go for further booking process. However, online bookings cost 20% of your total price. And the rest you can pay after arriving in Nepal.

Please note that the last-minute booking option is unavailable. As the trek is adventurous and involves a technical climbing section, we must organize the trip accordingly. Thus, we request that you pre-book the journey before some months.

Trip Itinerary

Boundless Adventure provides a 21-day itinerary for climbing Chulu East Peak. The itinerary includes day one for your arrival and day twenty-one for your departure. Likewise, days six and nine include acclimatization days. The rest of the days are spent hiking and enjoying the views of the Annapurna region. However, the itinerary is customizable, and we are okay with customizing it to the climbers' preferences.

The journey to Chulu East begins with a drive from Kathmandu to Dharapani, followed by a trek towards Chame. The camping points on the excursion are Dharapani, Chame, Pisang, Ngawal, Yak Kharka, Chulu Base Camp, Chulu High Camp, and Camp II before reaching the Summit of Chulu East.

The trek to Chulu East passes through the Annapurna Conservation area and covers the Annapurna Circuit. The trek package includes accommodation throughout the trekking journey and breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

Day 06: Acclimatization in Ngawal

As you trek to higher elevations daily, your body can't adjust to changing temperatures, which increases the chances of altitude sickness. Generally, altitude-related issues are visible above 2500m, and Ngawal lies at more than 3000m. Thus, to allow your body to adjust to the changed temperature so that the chances of altitude issues will decrease, we have added an acclimatization day on Ngawal.

The acclimatization day is yours. You can decide whether to spend the whole day resting or visiting the nearby areas. We suggest you rest for half of the day and, in the remaining time, visit the nearby areas and go for a day hike.

One memorable activity you can engage in on the acclimatization day is engaging with the Gurung and Managi communities, participating in cultural activities, and learning about their traditions. Also, for a day hike, you can go to the hill behind the Nawal village to enjoy the mesmerizing view of the Annapurna range. Likewise, the sunrise and sunset views from the mountain behind Ngawal village are also appealing.

Day 11: Trek to Camp II (5791m)

Day eleven's trek takes you closer to your final destination. The eleven-day destination is Camp II at an elevation of 5791m, with a morning meal. You'll begin to trek toward Camp II. The initial part of the trek is a gentle ascent. However, as you move further, the landscape changes into the harsh trail. Walking through steep ascent via rocky terrain is easy. Thus, we recommend taking a break frequently, keeping yourself hydrated, and listening to your body.

A three-hour adventurous trek takes you to the day's final destination, Camp II. The panoramic view of the surrounding area makes you forget all the challenges faced during the trial. You have much time after getting to Camp II; you can relax in your Camp by appreciating the beauty surrounding it. You can enjoy the fantastic sunset as the day is about to set. Day 12: Summit the Chulu East (6584m) and back to the Base Camp

Day twelve is the most exciting and awaited day on the journey. Early in the morning, with a headlamp and packed lunch, you'll set foot for climbing to the Chulu East summit. The initial part of the trek towards the Summit is a mix of rocky and snowy terrain. As you move further, the trail becomes more challenging and steep. Make yourself ready with crampons and ropes, and be mentally stable. The final part of getting to Summit is not easy; however, spectacular surroundings motivate you. 4-5 hours of adventurous climbing take you to the Summit of the Chulu East.

Standing at an elevation of 6584m at Chulu West provides a sense of accomplishment. The 360-degree view of mountain ranges will surround you. Your hard work and determination will pay off. Take time to appreciate your hard work and to overlook the stunning views. From the Summit, the sights of Mount Dhaulagiri (8,167 m), Nilgiri (7,061 m), Annapurna (8,091 m), and many other surrounding peaks are awe-inspiring.

After a pleasant time at the Summit, it's time to return to base camp for a night stay. The getting back part towards Base camp is slipper and continuously descending. Thus, we recommend descending slowly and paying attention to your body. As you get to Base Camp in the evening, enjoy your success and sleep peacefully while having a delicious night meal at your Camp. The overall journey of the twelfth day is 10-12 hours.

Most importantly, the climbing crew of Boundless Adventure supports climbers and motivates them at every step.

Best Season

Considering various factors, Spring and Autumn are the best seasons for climbing to Chulu East. However, Chulu East has four distinct seasons, among which Winter and Summer are less recommended for climbing Chulu East Peak.

Spring

Spring is a pre-monsoon season in Nepal and one of the country's finest climbing seasons, from March to May. The mild and stable weather conditions and clear skies with clear mountain views make Spring one of the best times for climbing. Moreover, the moderate temperature makes climbing comfortable, making it the best season for Chulu East Peak climbing.

Autumn

Autumn, from September to November, is the post-monsoon season in Nepal. It is peak season and best for Trekking and climbing. The stable weather, lush greenery, and cool and pleasant temperatures make it suitable for climbing in Autumn. Likewise, the crisp and clear skies provide a unique opportunity to witness the mountain views in Autumn.

Summer

Summer is the monsoon season in most parts of Nepal from June to August, so climbing in Chulu East is generally unsuitable. However, global warming has changed the scenario. In today's context, rainfall is less likely to occur in higher elevations like Chulu East. Thus, with proper planning and safety measures, climbers can climb in Chulu East even in the Summer.

Winter

Winter from December to February comes with several challenges; thus, we don't recommend you trek during the season. The weather in the Winter is freezing, making it less suitable for climbing at high altitudes. Climbing in Winter is difficult due to the snow-covered trail. The days in Winter are short, with shorter daylight hours, providing less time for climbing. However, if climbers are well-prepared for the harsh weather conditions, it is okay to climb Chulu East Peak. Besides the challenges, the visibility of snow-covered peaks is excellent during the Winter.

Requirement of Technical Skills

The Chulu Peak climbing involves a section with steep ice and snow slopes. Thus, climbers must know how to use crampons, ice axes, and ropes. Without this knowledge, climbers can't climb Chulu East Peak, making it challenging for trekkers without such skills.

Duration

The climb to Chulu East Peak requires at least 17 days, including an acclimatization day. Each day includes walking for 5-6 hours, making it physically and mentally challenging for climbers.

Unpredictable weather

The weather at higher elevations is unpredictable, which makes climbing more difficult. Cold temperatures and strong winds are a concern at higher elevations, including the summit of Chulu. Thus, we recommend checking the weather forecast before climbing and preparing for various weather conditions.

Requirement of Good Physical Fitness

For the Chulu East Peak climbing, the climber must be in good physical condition. The climb involves enduring harsh weather conditions for several days, so being in excellent physical condition is necessary.

Difficulty

Chulu East Peak climbing is in grade V and on the difficulty level, which means it is adventurous. Due to its adventurous nature, it is not suitable for climbers who have no peak climbing experience. So, what makes Chulu East Peak climbing adventurous? Here are some points:

High Altitude

Chulu East Peak is at an elevation of 6,584 m/ 21,601 ft. At that elevation, the chances of altitude sickness are high, making climbing physically demanding. Not everyone can reach such heights without any prior peak climbing experience. Even experienced climbers face difficulty while climbing Chulu East. Thus, we recommend that climbers be well-prepared for climbing to high altitudes and choose an itinerary plan with an acclimatization schedule.

The altitude throughout the climb to Chulu East Base Camp varies and involves significant elevation gain. The journey begins from the Dharapani village at an altitude of 1,946 m/6,383ft. From Dharapani, the journey ascends until reaching the summit of Chulu East. Here is a list of some prominent areas climbers pass through during their Chulu East Peak climbing excursions.

- Dharapani: 1,946 m/6,383ft

- Chame: 2,670m/ 8,758 ft
- Pisang: 3,300m/ 10826 ft
- Ngawal: 3657m/ 11998 ft
- Yak Kharka: 3,750 m/ 12,301 ft
- Chulu Base Camp: 4600m/ 15091 ft
- High Camp: 5334m/ 17500 ft
- Camp II: 5791m/ 18999 ft
- Chulu East Peak: 6584m/ 21601ft
- Manang: 3440m/ 11286 ft
- Phedi: 4450m/ 14599 ft
- Muktinath: 3760m/ 12335ft
- Thorong La: 5416m/ 17769ft
- Jomsom: 2720m/ 8923ft
- Pokhara: 820m/ 2690 ft
- Kathmandu: 1400m/ 4593 ft

The final destination, Chulu East Peak, is the highest elevation throughout the excursion, at 6584m/ 21601ft. Camp II is the second highest point, at 5791m/ 18999 ft. Thorong La is the third highest, at 5416m/ 17769ft.

Accommodation

The Chulu East Peak climbing package of Boundless Adventure includes accommodation for its clients throughout the journey. From Dharapani to Ngawal, the accommodation point is a tea house run by the locals. The tea houses offer basic amenities and are ideal stops for a night's stay. However, we arranged the tent from Yak Kharka to the summit of Chulu for camping as there is no option for tea houses from Yak Kharka. We suggest you bring a sleeping bag for warmth and comfortable sleep.

Tent for climbing days

There are no tea houses from Yak Kharka to the summit. Thus, a tent is necessary for about six days of camping. But don't worry—Boundless Adventure arranges tents with our staff to fix them and cook for you during camping. The camping points by tent on the Chulu East peak climbing are Yak Kharka, Base Camp, High Camp, and Camp II.

Food During the Trip

Along with accommodation, the package covers the cost of food as well. Boundless Adventure provides three meals daily (breakfast, lunch, and dinner) throughout the climbing excursion. From Dharapani to Ngawal, you'll get food in tea houses. But, from the tea house, the food will be in the tent that our staff will cook. The foods in tea houses are local and fresh; however, options for Western food are also available. Generally, Dal Bhat (lentils and rice), momos (dumplings), and Thukpa (noodle soup) are the local dishes you can have. Pizza, pasta, and sandwiches are the options available for Western food.

Weather and Climate

The Annapurna region's different areas, including Chulu East, face pleasant weather conditions during Spring and Autumn. The weather is gentle, with temperatures varying from 10°C to 15°C during day and nighttime, dropping to 5°C during Spring. The Autumn season is popular with stable and precise weather. The temperature ranges from 10°C to 12°C during the day and drops to -10°C at night in Autumn. Both seasons offer pleasant weather and clear sky, making Chulu East peak climbing favorable.

Summer weather is sunny and sometimes humid due to rainfall. However, Summer is the hottest season, with daytime temperatures from 15°C to 20°C. Nighttime temperatures range from 0°C to 5°C at Chulu East during the Summer. Winter is the coldest season, with daytime temperatures from 0°C to -5°C. Likewise, the nighttime face temperature is below -20°C.

However, climbers must understand that the higher they reach, the colder and more unpredictable the weather will be.

Climbing and Trekking Permits

Every climbing peak requires permits. Chulu East Peak climbing requires some permits from the Nepal Mountaineering Association and Nepal Tourism Board. You need two different permits: climbing permits and Annapurna Conservation permits permit. Boundless Adventure always provide you from Kathmandu.

Annapurna Conservation Area Permit (ACAP)

The Chulu East Peak lies within the Annapurna Conservation area; thus, ACAP is mandatory for climbing the Chulu East Summit. The Permit ensures the conservation of the natural environment, promotes sustainable tourism and supports local communities. Likewise, obtaining ACAP assures the regulation of the number of tourists and provides necessary infrastructure and safety support. Climbers can get that Permit through the Nepal Tourism Board in Bhirkutimandap, Kathmandu. However, Boundless Adventure provides ACAP on behalf of our client with no worries.

Chulu East Peak Climbing Permit

A permit is necessary for any peak climbing, and so is Chulu East. The climb to Chulu East requires a permit, which the Nepal Mountaineering Association (NMA) issues. The Permit helps regulate and control climbing activities in Chulu East to control overcrowding. Likewise, obtaining a permit helps protect the environment, ensure climber safety, and contribute to the local economy. Boundless Adventure is a registered trekking agency that can provide the Chulu East Peak climbing permit.
